Jacobs, Cordova & Associates Project Director, Cambodia - Support to the Ministry of Commerce and Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries respectively to map and streamline existing procedures for Company Registration and issuance of Phyto-Sanitary Certificates and to develop high level functional requirements for automating both processes. (2014)

Jacobs, Cordova & Associates Team Leader, Moldova - Modernization of Public Services Offered by Public Administration Authorities. The project involved undertaking an analysis of public services rendered by the central public authorities and developing a strategy with vision, goals and outline of more efficient and accessible future service delivery mechanisms. The work also includes developing a methodology for setting quality standards, identifying recourse mechanisms and proposing principles for setting tariff levels as well as a system for tariff approval and publication. The objective of the assignment was to develop a strategy (and tentative action plan) to improve the quality of public services in Moldova. In order to achieve high-quality and cost-efficient public services, the reform strategy focused on ensuring adequate institutional arrangements, financing from the national budget (and appropriate channeling of revenues collected by service providers through the national budget), improving supervision of and accountability for ensuring access and quality of public services, introducing explicit published standards for public services and establishing clear and effective mechanisms for exercising individual or collective right for recourse. (2011)

Jacobs, Cordova & Associates Team Leader, Efficient Decision Making Process at the Level of the Local Public Administration in Romania. The project aimed to improve the capacity of the local public administration institutions in Romania to develop new policy initiatives (regulation) using an evidence based approach. The aims of the project envisaged the development of 20 RIA's at different levels of local public administration (counties and municipalities). These pilot exercises which are a new development on this scale in Romanian public administration, followed the formal stages of the RIA process. The experience gathered will be used in the preparation of a guide for the formulation of public policy at local level.

As part of the same project a series of study visits took helping the participants (civil servants from various local public administration institutions) to be more familiar with the practice of formulating public policy using an evidence based approach. Based on the experience accumulated during the study visits and pilot exercises a strategy for further developing this kind of approach in the policy formulation process in Romanian local public administration was developed.

- Participating in launching conference and final conference

- Organizing 5, five-day study visits for a total of 175 participants to Ireland, Netherlands and Sweden
- Drafting the Guide to the Public Policy Process
- Organizing and overseeing the preparation of 20 pilot Regulatory Impact Assessments
- Drafting a strategy to improve the decision-making process

(2010-2011)

Jacobs, Cordova & Associates Team Leader. Improving the Public Policy Formulation and Planning Process in the Ministry of Administration and Interior in Romania. The project focused on the need to improve the skills and competencies of the Central Ministry's staff by means of the transfer of know-how from similar organisations in EU Member States, through a series of training courses and study tours, and the functional implementation of the policy cycle in the strategic departments of the Ministry, through a number of pilot exercises on current policy issues. The project also delivered increased skills and competences for the formulation, approval, monitoring and evaluation of the Ministry's policies.

Mr. Griffin:

- Participated in launching conference and final conference
- Organized 7, five day study visits for a total of 175 participants to Ireland, United Kingdom, Netherlands and Sweden
